HALLS OF IVY

The words "Chautauqua Central School" symbolize to us scholarship, sportsmanship, and integrity. This has been proven by her outstanding record. This record has been due largely to the efforts of our fine teaching staff.

We the Class of 1958 believe that learning is one of the most important parts of living. To Chautauqua and to her teachers goes our thanks for the education and guidance we have received here.

DEDICATION

For years every senior class has relied heavily on the assistance of one teacher in preparing its yearbook. We are grateful for his help, as well as his guidance and advice concerning our finances during our high school years.

Therefore, we, the Class of 1958, affectionately dedicate this INDIAN to Mr. Charles Quinette; our class advisor, teacher, and friend.

MR. JOHN TURNER

Principal

Mr. Turner has been a fine example of service and leadership to the students of Chautauqua Central School during his seventeen years as principal. His ability and integrity have exerted an influence on the students of C. C. S. that will truly help them form worthwhile, constructive, and dedicated lives.

In recognition of his capabilities, Mr. Turner received the honor of being elected President of the New York State Association of Secondary School Principals in December, 1957.

We are indeed fortunate in having a man of Mr. Turner's caliber as our principal.

MR. EDGAR SKINNER

Vice-Principal

As head of our science and mathematics department, and in the role of Vice-Principal, Mr. Edgar A. Skinner has devoted much of his life to young people. In his 51 years of teaching, he has interested and encouraged many students in entering courses and professions connected with science and mathematics.

Mr. Skinner's career represents a half century of dedication and devotion in the finest tradition of the teaching profession.

SENIOR ADVISORS

We, the class of 1958, would like to take this opportunity to thank our class advisors, Mr. Allen Rice and Mr. Charles Quinette.

The senior year is filled with many projects . . . figuring for the New York trip, assembling the Yearbook, selling Betty Dixon candy, presenting the class play, planning for graduation and other minor duties. Without the help of our advisors most of these could never have been accomplished.

Not only have they assisted us in the school-room and during class meetings, but they have voluntarily spent much of their free time with us. We wish to thank them for their guidance and friendship.

FLASH

The price of this dog has not been revealed, but it is reported that it cost Mr. Jones at least $6500. Mr. Jones, a multi-millionaire, made all of his money working at the St. Elmo Hotel in Chautauqua, N.Y.

Florence, Italy, Dec. 12, 1968. The International Cribbage Tournament has announced the winners of their annual cribbage doubles to be Miss Sue Turner and Miss Judie Aldrich. They have been playing together since their senior year in high school.

Southern Pines, N.C., Dec. 10, 1968. Miss Rebecca Lynch, most recent winner of the women's golf championship, is now on a tour of the states along the eastern coast. She will be speaking at banquets and clubs and has a number of television shows included in her agenda. Carl Wester, her agent, has announced that she is under consideration for a tour of Europe as a U.S. good will ambassador.

Houston, Tex., June 6, 1968. On a wild hunch two years ago, Sandra Wood purchased five acres of land. Today she is the lucky owner of $10,000,000 worth of oil wells. Miss Wood's only comment on her lucky fortune has been, "Bless my woman's intuition!" Too bad everyone doesn't have some of it!

GRADUATION

SENIOR YEAR

Senior year - memories of the past, visions of the future, plans for the present - pride, satisfaction, worry, insecurity. Every senior has these thoughts and feelings as he realizes that soon he is on his own, away from high school and the familiar everyday happenings.

Some of us will go on to college, others will seek employment now. No matter what we do, the knowledge and education we have received will follow us through life, but our learning is not ended the night of commencement, it increases with each new day and each new experience. No, the senior year is not the end, but rather a great beginning of a bright future. As American youth, we can each have anything we desire in life, if we are willing to work tirelessly to attain it.

Although we each look to the future with eager minds, we often like to remember the times we have had together as a class.

We've had some unforgettable times during our school years. Remember in eighth grade how we used to lift library tables, and poor Miss Gibbs in those art classes! When we entered high school, we settled down SOMEWHAT, and began trying?? to earn money for New York. I can still taste those good spaghetti dinners - our Variety Shows, what a lot of hard work, but wasn't Rock a good M.C. Tenth year English was really something, especially trying to dodge those paper airplanes! Hmm - Latin class next period - anyone got the latest issue of "Mad?" Junior year passed without too many mishaps, except in drivers' training. WOW - the poor kids in Vickey's group really needed life insurance when they careened down the road with her at the wheel. Senior year - class meetings - argue, argue, argue - Milton getting madder and madder, and everyone stamping out of the room. Such a time we had with Yearbook, too. I thought we'd never get it done on time. We had so much fun producing "Death Takes a Holiday." Even though we had many problems and important decisions to make, we had some riotous times. Some nights we'd laugh constantly during rehearsal. I don't see how Mrs. McCreary put up with us! Then during dress rehearsal, Eunice dropped all the glasses - what a shattering sound! Remember Janie putting on her own private show back-stage?

The wind-up to our years at Chautauqua was of course, our fabulous trip to New York. That bus ride - I thought it would never end! The fabulous skyline of New York - our lovely hotel rooms, so spacious and modern!! "Color T.V., air conditioning, and radio in every room." HA HA! The interesting, worthwhile tours through the city - Fifth Avenue, Chinatown, Rockefeller Center, the Bowery, the United Nations - the cold, boring boat ride around Manhattan. The long sleep we (including the Blanchards and Mrs. Swart) enjoyed during the show at the Hayden Planetarium - and who was the boy who snored?? - the Museum of Natural History - Milton looking for Joy "among the bones" - Li'l Abner was terrific - Jack Dempsey's, anyone for a revolving door??? Who were the girls who lived on one meal a day, and then spent all their money shopping the last day?? The climax came Friday night - guess who won't ever faint again, especially near a sharp-cornered table? Somehow we all managed to pack our things together and board the bus at midnight - tired flat-footed, but full of unforgettable memories.

Only two more activities remained - the Senior Prom and Graduation. The juniors did a beautiful job with the decorations, they certainly worked hard! The Graduation exercises were very impressive, and added a perfect touch to an already perfect year.

As we leave Chautauqua, these, our fondest memories, will follow each of us, and remain with us for years to come.

SENIOR PLAY

For the first time in several years, the seniors presented a serious play, "Death Takes A Holiday." The long hours of rehearsals, the decisions made by the cast in the face of many crises, and the final performance resulted in an excellent production. Not only were the intricacies of acting learned under the direction of Mrs. William McCreary, and the necessity for co-operation and team work, but the values gained and the lessons taught by this highly philosophical play proved beyond a doubt that there is much to be derived from working on a play of this caliber.

The entire senior class is to be commended for its interest and hard work behind the scenes, and a special word of thanks goes to the McCrearys for their untiring and capable direction.

It was with a feeling of triumph and accomplishment that the Juniors marched indignantly into room 215 September 4, in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifty seven. After we had once again renewed our old enemies, fought over class dues, moaned about our heavy schedules, spoiled our nice clean lockers, been late to several classes, proudly displayed our class rings, upset the teachers, lost several library books, and failed various subjects, we were again able to settle into the familiar old routine. It was not long before each of us was able to pass perhaps one subject out of five, and we then began our class activities. We were led in these by our president, Sandra Colligan, with our vice-president, Sam Gleason, presiding in her absence. Minutes were submitted by Margaret Wittman, and Pat Martz handled our finances. Sharon Hovey and Paul Green were our Student Council Representatives.

During the first few months of school there was such a rush that our cerebrums were nearly splitting, when we broke the hub-bub with a class party at the home of Sally Miller. Suddenly Christmas vacation swept upon us and we were once again whisked into the blissfulness of a life with neither sleep, worry, or cramming. (Needless to say we did not eliminate food). Well, Merry Christmas and back to the grind again.

In school things or faces were looking rather glum, due to the fact that our Mid-Year surprise package was coming up. However, through the efforts and patience of our teachers, grim faces soon disappeared. It was now time for the basketball games to begin and concerts and dances were also peering into the world of books. Although our class had a slight shortage of Arthur Murrays, we did manage to support these dances to the best of our ability, and were well rewarded with the success of our smorgasbord dinner. The parents of class members helped us a great deal with this and we wish to thank them again. Now our consistent fights in class meetings had subsided somewhat, for we soon came to realize that our budget could afford no extravagances regardless of the majority vote. Mr. Burlingame and Mr. Skinner, our referees, guided us in our decisions and helped us to use better judgment in making them.

We are now planning our yearbook for next year, the senior prom, and our next smorgasbord. Naturally we are all anticipating the time when we ourselves will be seniors, and we feel that we are now prepared for this great day.

At any rate, I think we will all agree that the Class of 1959 has had a Junior year never to be forgotten.

Swish! What a fast moving year! Oh, joy to be a Junior. Can't wait until next September. But everyone is sure to welcome a vacation. Won't it seem funny not to have any tickets to sell? But there'll be none to buy, so that's a gleam of starlight. Just think, a whole $2\frac{1}{2}$ months to make up new excuses for not having homework done, telling friends about the hilarious time we had last year, and quivering when we think about those nose-grinding subjects next year. Boy! Speaking of subjects, this year was really a good year for homework. Assignments fell like February's snow. Won't the summer seem quiet without those study halls?

What a successful year for class functions! As usual everyone raved and raved about the de-e-licious ham dinner. Everyone thought "Cupid's Holiday" was real "cool." Too bad we couldn't have had more of a floor show because Mr. Burlingame's pink party dress was at the laundry. Oh Boy! Were those class meetings ever a riot! By the way, I move the class buy aspirin for Kenny. Did we ever talk and laugh about our problems. Funny, the more class meetings we had, the more problems we had!

Well, here's the end of the page and the end of this year. Years from now this year will come back in our fondest memories. P.S. Won't we miss all those nice Seniors?

FRESHMAN

A great deal of responsibility for the destiny of democracy and the freedom of mankind lies within our national boundaries. The future of democracy will soon rest upon the ability of the high school student of today to understand other people and get along with them as equals. These qualities are needed in the world now, and we, the students will be responsible for applying them. Upon our capability to promote understanding and cooperation depends the eventual peace or destruction of the world. This ability will be the results of the outlooks and behaviors we gain during our school years.

Perhaps what makes our freshman year so difficult is the conflict between gaining, deserving, and keeping a foothold with the upper classmen, learning to understand ourselves and others, and working toward the fulfillment of our country's needs.

We hope that next year we will shed some of our uncertainties and will progress as the future builders of the world.
